Of District Schools Should Be of Highest Character.

Mr. John B. McFerran Writes of the Importance of Electing Trustees and Urges Patrons to Awake.

Louisville, Ky., May 29, 1910.

EDITOR OF THE JEFFERSONIAN:

May I venture through your valuable paper to call attention to the question of the character of the trustees of our district schools, to the portions of our county schools, to the overwhelming importance of the character and qualifications of the men who are chosen to be trustees of our county schools?

I deem it especially important to do so at this time, because of the approach of the date when one-half of all the trustees in the entire county are to be chosen. It is my understanding that the law provides that on the first Saturday in August the election for trustees, to serve for the ensuing two years, shall be held at the school building in each sub-district, from 1 to 5 o'clock p. m., of that day, and that all nominations for school trustees shall be by petition, signed by at least ten persons eligible to vote in elections for such trustees, and no name shall be placed upon any ballot unless such nominating petition is filed with the county clerk at least ten days before the election.

The character and qualifications of our trustees will inevitably control the quality and efficiency of the schools. In our public school system the office of Trustee is basic, fundamental; the building cannot be stronger than the foundation. Hitherto, through inattention and indifference upon the part of large numbers of the parents and patrons of the schools in the several districts, the matter has been allowed to drift into a "happy go lucky" sort of condition. For the positions, for the positions, from the standpoint of the children's interests and the uplift of the schools, have thought themselves that they were other more important things, consequently in too many cases the choice has fallen upon some one who had nothing to do, and who usually never did that, and so I think largely because of this fact our schools have not made the progress they should have done.

I believe the selection of school trustee is the most important of any that can engage our attention. We are more directly and fundamentally interested in that question than we are in the choice of a Governor, Legislator or even the President. If the boys and girls of the future are made sound and intelligent, they will properly attend to the choosing of these other agencies of Government. If they are not, we are in

OVER $100.00

In Prizes to Be Given Away Free.

Subscription Contest in First Magisterial District of Jefferson County Starts To-day.

On another page in this issue of The Jeffersonian will be noticed an attractive advertisement of a great subscription contest, which The Jeffersonian will give in the First Magisterial District of Jefferson county, beginning with to-day, and have taken these steps because we desire to greatly increase our subscription list at this territory.

After this contest is over we may have something nice to offer the other three districts.

Announced in the advertisement, over $100.00 in handsome prizes are to be given away absolutely free to the three most popular ladies in the First District. The winners will be declared by those having the greatest number of votes at end of contest. Votes are secured as they have been heretofore in The Jeffersonian's contests, except that, in addition to the votes on subscriptions and by printing at this office, Mr. Chas. E. Seng, the well known jeweler, of 306 East Market Street, Louisville, will give 100 votes with each cash purchase of $1.00 at his store. This is done because Mr. Seng has contributed the $50.00 diamond ring to be used as a capital prize in this great Jeffersonian-Merchant's Contest.

The ladies of the First District are invited to enter this great popularity race, and their friends, irrespective of where they reside, are invited to take part by going to work and securing their favorite winner of the contest all that is necessary is to fill out the nominating ballot printed in this issue and send it to The Jeffersonian. Then the work of getting subscriptions and asking your friends to have their job printing done at this office and their gift jewelry and have their optical work done at the store of Chas. E. Seng, 306 E. Market Street, Louisville, will begin.

The honor of winning a contest like this is very great, besides the prizes are well worth working for, consequently we would suggest to you, ladies of the First District, to enter as a candidate at once. Next week we will be too late. Then to go to work. Get your friends to hustle for you. Tell everybody that you are in the race to win. Enthusiasm begets success. Get the subscription of every

He was gone about two minutes and returned with the young lady, saying "I have hired her." The young lady looked to be about sixteen or seventeen years of age and could not possibly have had any great experience in teaching.

Now, there was less time consumed in the employment of this teacher, in whose intimate charge were to be placed a number of immortal souls and future citizens of the great republic at their most impressionable age, than the time consumed in the purchase of a spanned horse, cow or hog. Was this sort of a crime?

Of course, it is to be hoped that this was an extreme case, but it shows how very delinquent many of us have been in this important matter of looking after the welfare and advancement of our precious children.

Fellow citizens, friends, there are three cords to the puppet string, either of which should awaken the dead, to arouse ourselves out of lethargy, "I want a teacher." The Superintendent replied that teachers were God-sent, and that we must not change the situation for the better? Will we not see that it is done?

In love for the children, Yours truly, JOHN B. McFERRAN.

person you know, it doesn't matter where they live. Secure it for one, two, three, four or more years—but get it. Get the merchants to have their letter heads, bill heads, dodgers, etc., printed at this office, and don't forget to send your friends to Mr. Seng's store to-day. Every vote counts, and the three ladies receiving the greatest number will get the prizes.

Write to your friends and relatives at distant places. Get them to work. Give them a nice enthusiastic letter, full of ginger and snap, so that they will figuratively take off their coats and go to work in earnest for you. Every worker for you means that many more votes. Sample copies of The Jeffersonian have been given away free; carry one with you so as to explain and show.

No favoritism will be shown whatever. It matters little to whom we may have the pleasure of giving these handsome prizes—the business is what we are after.

Some may think we are discriminating by offering these prizes to the ladies in the First District only, but we think not. During the past three years The Jeffersonian has given away nearly $1,000 in prizes and trips, and Jeffersonian ladies have been, in most cases, the winners. This time we desire to fix it so that some of the others may have a chance, so will divide the county into districts, so as to give all a show. The opportunity is now given to every citizen from 1 to 100 years of age—residing in the First District of the county. Read the advertisement or call up The Jeffersonian to-day for particulars. Then get in the race, and go to work. The lady getting a good start will have the advantage. If you do not want to get into the race yourself, nominate some friend.

LETTER

From Hon. Herman D. Newcomb, Candidate For Representative in Congress, to the Democrats of Jefferson County.

To the Democratic voters of Jefferson county, greetings: I am, as many of you doubtless know, a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Congress, in the primary on Tuesday, June 7th, and I earnestly solicit your influence and support on that occasion.

From 1901 to 1905 I had the honor of representing Jefferson county in the Kentucky House of Representatives and last year in the Senate. During these six years of service I was the author and advocate of twenty-two bills, that are today among the laws of Kentucky. These bills were of immediate use and benefit to the people of Kentucky and form part of my record of which I am neither ashamed or afraid.

It is my ambition to serve you in Congress, and I shall trust that as a resident of the county and your neighbor and with my record before you, that the voters of this county will find pride in giving one of their own people a large majority.

My opponent has had this nomination four times already. This longer than any other Democrat has served this district, and I believe that you will agree with thousands of other Democrats in the good old Democratic rule of "change about" and "rotation in office."

Two years ago my opponent was declared the nominee over me in a convention, and I nominated himself managed his campaign at that time, as well as supporting him from the stump over the entire county and city. I regret that he is now unwilling to give way to me, especially as his record is one that I cannot approve, either as a Democrat or citizen. I think my opponent surrendered all claims on the people and the Democratic party when he voted and worked against the Pure Food Law; the bill to abate the evils of the injunction law; the bill to amend the Sherman anti-trust law and other measures, which the people were interested.

The next House of Representatives will be Democratic; this is generally admitted. It is important that this district shall receive its just dues in a Democrat be sent just who is in line with the principles of the Democratic party, and with the progressive spirit that the people generally are demanding in their public men. If nominated and elected I shall carry to Washington the resolve I held at Frankfort and undertake to be of some real and affirmative value to the people of the county.

The polls open at six o'clock in the morning, and close at four o'clock in the afternoon, and I ask that you spare enough time from your duties the day of the primary to honor me with your vote.

Respectfully, HERMAN D. NEWCOMB.

AUTOMOBILE

Again Causes Accident With Serious Results.

Miss Margaret Driver Given Miscellaneous Shower—Death of Infant—All the Buechel News.

Buechel, May 30.—Walter Wilhoite, his wife, Ernest Briscoe, were injured in a runaway accident one day last week while out driving near their home, near Newburg. The horse became frightened at a passing automobile, and becoming unmanageable, the buggy was upset, dragged and damaged beyond repair. The men were badly hurt, and the women removed to their homes in the automobile.

Miss Margaret Driver, who is to be married to Mr. Albert Kanier on June 1, was given a miscellaneous shower on Monday, May 26, at the home of Mrs. J. Nellis Struck by a number of her young lady friends.

The house was beautifully decorated in sweet peas, ferns, wedding bells, hearts, etc. A delightful luncheon was served of four o'clock party. The contest was enjoyed and the prize, a linen and lace centerpiece, was won by Miss Lulu Briscoe.

Those present were Mrs. J. Nellis Struck, Mrs. J. W. Summers, Mrs. Pratt Reynolds, Mrs. J. Byron Standford, Misses Margaret Driver, Lillian Driver, Della Standford, Emma M. Whistler, Cordelia Pegenbush, Gertrude Hiles, Dorothy Skiles, Cleone Summers, Nettie Diemer, Anna B. Diemer, Elizabeth Struck, Katherine Graff, Elizabeth Skiles, Elizabeth Haefler, Virginia Briscoe, Lulu Briscoe, Ida B. Kaiser, Sadie Skiles, Mayme Kaiser, Florence Roggenkamp and Minnie Mitchell.

The following members of the graduating class of 1910, of which Misses Dorothy and Elizabeth Skiles are members, met with their friends on Wednesday evening: Misses Katherine and Rosa Schuch; Messrs. Palmer Mitchell, Edward Brienstein and Fred Graff.

Mrs. T. S. Skiles and Misses Dorothy M. Bischoff and Dorothy and Sadie Skiles attended the wedding reception of their cousin, Miss Lorena Shultz, to Mr. Clarence Bess, of East Broadway, on the fourteenth. Mrs. Frederica Nickles was given a surprise party on last Saturday night, beginning at 8 o'clock, at which several speeches will be made upon the advantages of organizing. Among the speakers will be Mr. H. N. Reubel, president of the Jefferson County Bank at this place. All farmers and their families are urged to attend.

A meeting will be held at Bruce H. Sharpe are canvassing Jefferson county this week organizing societies of the American Society of Equity. If the farmers want to go to the front where they belong, they should not lose this opportunity of organizing.

The Society of Equity will greatly aid in solving the questions of the farm labor problems, how to get a profitable crop for crops, how to control the price of meat to the consumer and raise the price of cattle and hogs to the raisers, how to make the value of farms, and many others. This is not a revival of the Grange or Alliance, but a national movement that is forming to put the speculators and gamblers out of business out of business and give the farmers a profitable price for every crop they grow.

Gov. WILLSON has issued a pro-strengthens, sends its reminder that Tuesday, June 14, 1910, will be the

The JEFFERSONIAN is a newspaper of the county—all of the county. It is the only paper published in Jefferson county entirely devoted to the interests of county people. Therefore, we endeavor at all times to work for those things that we be-publish the most important happen-

Jeffersonian has from fifty to three hundred subscribers in every com-paper in the state. Yet, we are not satisfied, and will not be until every respectable and enterprising citizen of Jefferson county is a regular reader of our home paper. Consequently, as will be noticed on another page of this issue, we are starting another subscription campaign. We believe the time has come when people, as a rule, look for prizes or responses when they subscribe for their city or county paper. The large dailies frequently cut their rates less than half or offer prizes in order to get subscribers. Why is this? Sure, not because the people of this great country are behind with the forward march of the world and do not like to read. It is not that.

They have been educated up to the point of looking for special bargains and extra inducements. So, that is just what The Jeffersonian is offering to the ladies of the First Magisterial District of Jefferson county—extra inducements to help boost our subscription list. Over one hundred dollars in handsome prizes are to be awarded the three most popular ladies in this district—or, in other words, awarded to the three ladies having the greatest number of friends that will "take off their coats" and go to work for them. If you are interested in any girl or woman in the First District, or if you desire to see your county paper prosper, nominate the one of your choice and go to work for her. It does not take money or very much work—simply a friendly word about the paper and the lady you want to see win among your neighbors and friends and the work is done. The people of Jefferson county will subscribe for The Jeffersonian if the matter is brought before them in the right way.

TOPICS IN BRIEF.

Did not Jesus say "patch not an old garment with new cloth, nor put new wine in old bottles?" This proves reform will never do. The work must be thorough and revolutionary.

The servants of the people raise their salary at will and can not be turned off by the people. The people who serve, dare not strike for higher wages and may be left jobless at any time.

Eliminate the tenements and slums and conditions brought about by poverty, and we will have the most rational tuberculosis cure devised.

Tobacco trusts gave birth to the child called "Night Rider," and then wished to kill its own offspring.

Monkeys are kept in prison (cages) by wire fences men by paper titles.

In the Standard Oil case the Judge dismissed the whole jury panel because there were too many farmers in it. So it has come to the point when farmers, once the backbone of the nation, are not considered fit to make a jury.

When corporations
on trial they must have a jury that can be won. See? Rockefeller now believes he's the light of the world, because everybody uses his coal oil.

The man in the headline is called a loafer.

Taxes are levied to pay officials and the officials are elected to levy taxes. That's easy!

The latest is that Roosevelt has been made a member of the South Africa Club. Good. Brother, brother!

One reason of the hard times is "soft bread."

Greec had her Colossus of Rhodes.
America has her Colossus of Railroads—the merger.

The poor don't know where they are going, but they are on their way.

Aristotle said the end of labor is to gain leisure. Capitalism amends by adding "for the employers."

The most popular young lady in America is Daisy Dollar, but she is engaged to Cor-O-rations.

SWAGAR SHERLEY

Asking For Renomination Upon His Past Record in Congress—Can the Voters Afford to Make a Change?

Congressman Swagar Sherley, who is asking for a renomination and who expects to be endorsed by the Democrats of the district at the primary of Tuesday, June 7, is running on his record in Congress in the completion of his fourth term. His friends are a unit in saying that he has done more work of value for his constituents than any other Congressman the district ever had, while even his opponents have been unable to find a flaw in his Congressional career.

Mr. Sherley has given out a statement pointing out that his membership on the Committee on Appropriations was secured as the result of his considerable tenure of office combined with the best service that he could render. No new member could hope to secure a place on an important committee, and it is only after repeated demonstration of ability, knowledge of parliamentary law and skill in debate on the floor that the new comers are recognized. Sherley has been through the mill, has taken his place as one of the party leaders, and is now ready to give his most valuable service to the community and the nation.

While Congressman Sherley has done much for his district, he has not defined his efforts to that alone.
He was a member of the Committee on Merchant Marine when the ship subsidy bill was brought up by the Republicans and referred to that committee. He opposed it vigorously, and it was largely through his efforts that the bill failed of passage.

During the present session of Congress he has been prominent in the fight on the arbitrary powers of the Speaker; although this attitude has long been held by him, he proposed a measure of relief which has met with general approval, and which, if adopted, will result in the Speaker being deprived for all time of the power to smother in committee measures which he personally does not want brought to the floor.

As a leader in the fight on the improper exercise of the power of the Speaker, Mr. Sherley has been recognized by the Ohio Valley Improvement Association and the National Rivers and Harbors Congress. A bill proposed and a half for immediate expenditure is to pass the House shortly and this money will be used in bettering the canal at Louisville and making other improvements in this vicinity. Later appropriations will be made to carry out the general plan of river improvement.

Mr. Sherley has stood with his party on the leading questions in Congress, and is recognized as the right hand of Chairman Claxon. He has been a member of the House since 1902, and is recognized as a leader in the House, regard Mr. Sherley as one of the best men Kentucky has ever sent to Congress, and his counsels are asked for whenever a matter of party policy is to be worked out.

The questions for the voters of the Fifth district to ask themselves are,
"Can we afford to discharge a public servant who has proved his worth?
Can we afford to throw away the valuable experience and the ability to serve us gained through eight years of service? Can we afford to replace a man of known ability with one of whose ability in Congress we can know nothing until he has been tested?"

The fair answering of these questions, Mr. Sherley's supporters believe, means an overwhelming victory for him next Tuesday.

CHAPTER XXVII.

OFF TO THE BALL.

Floy reached home in the golden dusk, rosy and breathless with running. Supper was over. Nina and Glady had gone to their room to dress for the ball. Ned and Larne were seated upon the front porch, smoking the cigars, when a Floy bounced up the stone steps.

"Hello, Floy, just getting in.
Where have you been?" inquired Ned, looking slightly interested.

"Where I don't want to be again tonight," answered Floy, jumping in the door way and flinging her sun-bonnet upon a chair near.

"And where was that, pray?" asked Ned, growing slightly interested.
"Up on apple tree," was the laughing reply. "You see, Mr. Green's bull and I ran a race, and I beat him to the apple tree, and up I went.
Stayed there, too, until a hunter happened to come along with a gun. Oh, my, but he was the handsomest young man I had ever seen, but he was nearly so brave as he looked to be.
When he came to the tree the animal charged upon him, and instead of seizing the beast by the throat, as horns and killing him then and there with his fists, as the hero of a novel would have done, he took to his heels and speeded across the field as fast as his heels would carry him. With the bull right after him. He would have caught him too, as sure as fate, if it hadn't been for me, for when I saw the poor thing's danger, I jumped from the tree, grabbed the rifle which he had left behind, took aim, fired and presto! there was another beef on the market."

"Go on, go on, what next?" asked Ned, laughing uproariously. Floy paused a moment for breath, then continued:

"Well, then the fellow came forward and thanked me for shooting the bull, instead of him. Then, after chatting a time, we parted, only to meet again tonight, for he is to be at the ball, and I am to dance the first dances with him. Just wait until you see him and you will know just how he looks. Ned, you or papa will have to pay Mr. Green for the creature, or he will be as mad as a hatter."

"Ah-ha! that's fifty dollars out of my pocket," said Ned, trying to look severe; "for father cannot spare the money at present. Now, Floy, you will have to do without the birthday present I had promised you."

"That's all right; I'm willing for the money to go to old Mr. Green.
I tell you, Ned, it was worth fifty dollars to make the acquaintance of that handsome fellow. Now, I must eat my supper, then dress for the ball."

She disappeared in the direction of the kitchen, leaving the young men laughing immoderately. At eight o'clock sharp the carriage and buggy were ready to convey the young folks to the village. Ned and Larne were in the sitting room awaiting the girls. Presently they came tripping in, chatting like magpies.

"What a lovely trip! Nina entered first. Ned and Larne started back in astonishment at the sparkling vision. Her rich, brunette beauty was set off to perfection by the gorgeous costume of gold satin, and pale yellow gauze, low ruffs. Her blue-black hair was coiled in a becoming Psyche knot and fastened with slender gold pencil and a single rose bud. Short rings which had been in papers all day clustered about her white neck and forehead. Diamonds glittered like drops of dew in her small ears and a bracelet and necklace of the same precious jewels clasped her round, dusky arms and throat. Her feet were incased in a pair of bronze satin slippers which had belonged to her mother years ago, and which were at least a size too small. Pale yellow kid gloves were drawn upon her shapely hands, and this, with a bouquet of yellow roses, completed her costume. She sweeps into the room with the air of a tropical queen, conscious of her superb loveliness.

"I hope you have not grown impatient with waiting," she said, bestowing a ravishing smile upon Larne.

"Not at all. I would be willing to wait forever to at last get a glimpse of such a lovely trip," answered Larne, bowing and smiling.

"Where's that the way fellows talk in novels," said Floy, gliding to ward the sofa where they were seated.
"But come, Mr. Glimm, don't waste any time in paying compliments, for if we don't hurry we shall be late for the ball. It's all Nina's fault, too. I thought she never would get ready."
She couldn't get her dress too right.
It took her an hour to get a pair of number two slippers on, and then she went to take down her curls she got one of the tins hung in her hair, fooled it at for half an hour, and at last had to get me to cut off the whole curl. I can't see that she looks anything extra after all, for her face looks awful creamy, as she had no powder to put on, for I spilled the whole box full in the washbowl before she was ready to beautify her complexion. I told her before we came down that I shouldn't be a bit surprised if some of the city folks would call her a country pumpkin.

For you know she is a country girl and her dress would suggest pumpkins in November. I like Glady's dress much better. That silvery blue just suits her fair face and pink cheeks.
And don't she look sweet with her hair curled? It is so long and such golden color. I know none of the city girls will be any more beautiful than she."

"Floy, do hush," entreated Glady, blushing rosy, and burying her face in the bosom of pink rosebuds which she carried. "To hear you talk one would think I was the queen of beauty."

"And I, the queen of the Gnomes," said Nina, as she busied herself in donning her cap; the angry color coming and going in her cheeks.

"Gnomes? What Gnomes?" inquired Floy, taking up her light cloth and preparing to don it. Larne stepped forward and took the wrap from her hands.

"Miss Floy, allow me to assist you," he said politely.

"Thank you," she responded, and soon shimmering white dress was hid beneath the long cape like cloak. She even tucked the train up out of sight so as not to get it soiled. She wore no jewels, having concluded to wear flowers instead of the pearls her mother had given her. A bunch of white roses and a half wreath of the same lovely flowers nestled among her glossy brown curls. Dainty white kid slippers, with their slim feet, and long, white silk mitts were drawn upon her hands, reaching to the dimpled elbows where the white gauze sleeves were fastened.
It was a simple costume, but withal a beautiful one.

"Come, let's be off," cried Floy gaily. "I will make a star," dancing into the hall, out on the front porch, down the steps and into the carriage like a whirlwind. The others followed more slowly. Ned and Glady got into the buggy, while Larne and Nina joined Floy in the carriage.

"Ned, Jake," said Floy, addressing the negro who acted as coachman.
"Drive like a man."

"Yessum," grinned Jake, touching the mettlesome horse with the whip, and away they dashed.

"O my, ain't it grand, riding in a carriage," said Floy, sinking back among the soft cushions. "It's a sight of infinite ease. 'Tis so glad I kept begging papa until he bought one.
Mamma says that we don't need a carriage out here among these hills, but I think we can make use of it instead of riding horseback every where we go."

Larne smiled behind his drooping
mustache.

"Yes, Miss Floy, a carriage is a luxury among these hills," he said trying to hide his amusement.

"Suppose we change the subject and talk of something more interesting than carriages," said Nina, chagrined at Floy's way of discretion.

"Alright, I'm willing to talk of anything," answered Floy. "Mr.
Glimm, suppose you tell us something of your life and home in the city."

"I fear that will not be very interesting," said Larne. "However, I will tell you what little there is to tell.
My home is in Philadelphia,
where my mother and sister now reside. My father is dead. He died when I was but six years old. At fourteen I entered college where I stayed until two years ago. Since then, I have been at home very little,
having spent the time in traveling in order to gratify my taste for sketching and to obtain a sketch of something in every State of the Union. And here I am now among the Kentucky hills."

"You will use the pictures in adorn your home, I suppose,"
said Nina.

Larne shook his head. "No, indeed," he answered. "I shall sell
most of them."

"Why, I thought you were rich!"
exclaimed Floy, opening her brown eyes very wide.

Larne laughed heartily at her astonishment. "No, no, no, I am not a wealthy man by any means.
My mother has a comfortable income, enough for moderate living, beside our home in Philadelphia and the Wildwood ruins."

"Then Wildwood is really yours?"
said Floy. "I forgot to ask you about your last trip to the ruins."

"Yes, Wildwood really belongs to me. I have written several letters of inquiry to our solicitors and received satisfactory answers. It is ours because of a deed which was made many years ago."

"And will you fix up the old place?"
inquired Floy.

"Yes, I have made a fortune painting pictures," he rejoined.

Half an hour later they reached the village. Floy was in a fever of excitement as the carriage drew up before the dancing hall.

"Well, here we are at last," she cried joyfully. "I do hope we are too late for the first dances, for I promised that to the hero of the hay field."

"Then will you accord me the pleasure of the first quadrille, Miss Floy?" asked Larne, as he assisted
her from the carriage.

ONE $20.00 EASTMAN FOLDING CAMERA.

The Eastman is considered the very best camera on the market, and to back up what we say in regard to it, we have purchased it from the SOUTHERN OPTICAL CO., Louisville, where it may be seen and our statements verified. The Eastman Camera is the highest attainment of what may be called pocket camera construction (see cut). It has all the features and adjustments found on cameras of three times its bulk, and these coupled with its capacity of ten exposures (2 1/2 x 3 1/2) commend it to the most advanced amateur. Call at the Southern Optical Co. and ask to see The Jeffersonian's camera. It's a dandy.

pleasure of the first quadrille, Miss Floy?" asked Larne, as he assisted
her from the carriage.

carriage," said Floy, sinking back
among the soft cushions. "It's a sight
begging papa until he bought one.
Mamma says that we don't need a
carriage out here among these hills,
but I think we can make use of it in-
where we go."

mustache.

"Yes, Miss Floy, a carriage is a
luxury among these hills," he said
trying to hide his amusement.

"Suppose we change the subject
esting than carriages," said Nina,
chagrined at Floy's way of discretion.

"Alright, I'm willing to talk of
anything," answered Floy. "Mr.
Glimm, suppose you tell us some-
city."

"I fear that will not be very inter-
tell you what little there is to tell.
My home is in Philadelphia,
reside. My father is dead. He died
when I was but six years old. At
fourteen I entered college where I
stayed until two years ago. Since
then, I have been at home very little,
having spent the time in traveling
something in every State of the Union. And here I am now among the Kentucky hills."

"You will use the pictures in
said Nina.

Larne shook his head. "No, indeed," he answered. "I shall sell
most of them."

exclaimed Floy, opening her brown
eyes very wide.

Larne laughed heartily at her
a wealthy man by any means.
My mother has a comfortable in-
come, enough for moderate living,
beside our home in Philadelphia and
the Wildwood ruins."

said Floy. "I forgot to ask you

WHAT school?

When a young lady takes a course in CHARTER, she finds in 12 weeks at Clark's School, Louisville, a high-grade education from experienced writers of the old system has failed to give the position and is told to "Come to work in the morning," what school should she say? You should attend. That happened to one of our graduates in the Clark School, and it will happen to more than holding her own with all others, so says her employer. Charter is the best system published.

THE JEFFERSONIAN

JEFFERSONTOWN, KY.

THURSDAY, JUNE 2, 1910.

AN EXPLANATION.

I want to say to the regular correspondent at Routh that my letter added to hers in The Jeffersonian of May 12th was not meant to help her. Therefore, I decline the thanks. It was written at the urgent request of friends and relatives, who live away from their dear old neighborhood, and to whom a long, newsy letter from here, containing some mention of all our neighbors, would be as a letter from home, for which they would gladly pay their one dollar a year. Besides I wanted to let the other lodges of the Farmer's Union, the Modern Brotherhood of America know that we met at the Routh schoolhouse. So, if they care to visit us, they would know where to find us.

I did not know that the regular correspondent thought she had a monopoly on the Routh news. If I have violated the code of ethics governing newspaper correspondents, I am sorry. I was thinking of precedent, and knew that other residents will corroborate me, when I say that the most interesting period of the Spencer Courter's life was when three good, true men in this neighborhood wrote letters to it.

It seems that the regular correspondent had to read the letter from Routh over the second time before she saw that added to her's were a few very interesting items.

For her benefit I will say I have had the pleasure of seeing Halley's comet. I looked long at it in wonder and awe. My mind could hardly grasp or conceive of the immensity of space which there must be, for a comet that magnitude to go hurrying through, and only comes within the range of our vision once in about every seventy-five years.

The thought occurred to me that even in the columns of The Jeffersonian (the best column I ever saw, by the way) there must be room for the regular correspondent's letters and an occasional one from me. Now, so far as I am concerned this incident is closed, but with the kind permission of the editor, at the earnest request of some friends and neighbors, by my own desire, I have something to tell which will interest the readers. I will sometimes send in a letter—not from Routh, but from our old stamping ground of Dry Ridge.

Getting Ready for K. P. A. Meeting.
The committee, composed of Ben Cosine, of Shelbyville, Vernon Richardson, of Danville, and J. C. Alcock, of Jeffersontown, named by President Tom Underwood, of Hopkinsville, to arrange a prize contest for best job printing, etc., at the annual meeting at Middlesboro beginning June 20, met at Shelbyville Saturday. The printer's supply houses agreed to donate liberally to the contest and the publishers of the state will, doubtless, begin now to get ready to win some of the handsome prizes.

CONSOLIDATED

Schools Visited by Jefferson County Teacher.

Mrs. Viola Caldwell Talks With Pupils, Teachers, Superintendents and Patrons and Finds No Criticism.

Some weeks ago a letter appeared in The Jeffersonian suggesting that the County Board visit some of the consolidated schools in order to determine whether or not they were satisfactory. The suggestion seemed to be a most excellent one, and the result of the investigation would, no doubt, astonish those who so violently oppose the idea.

It has been my pleasure recently to visit two such schools and to talk with pupils, teachers, principals, County Superintendent and patrons and not yet have I heard one just criticism.

One of the schools is located at Hope, Bartholomew county, Indiana, and the other at Grant, Boone county, Kentucky. My information concerning the former was obtained from the County Superintendent and is in substance as follows:

Ten years ago there were thirteen rural schools in the township, but as the enrollment dropped to twelve, these were gradually abandoned and the pupils transferred to other schools. In 1908 about sixty pupils had been transferred and but five rural schools were maintained by the township. Each school employed one teacher and all the grades were represented, making it impossible to expect good work anywhere.

This unsatisfactory condition led to the consolidation of the five schools into one. The result is a splendid new eight-room schoolhouse, situated within one-half mile of the center of the township. The building is a red brick, trimmed in white stone. It is well heated, well lighted and well ventilated; it is furnished electrically within and without and is thoroughly modern.

As to the comparative cost of maintaining the consolidated school: There are five teachers employed in it before the cost of janitor service and fuel is no greater, and far more satisfactory; the bill for repairs is far less; transfers less than one-half; but the transportation costs enough to make the cost per pupil a little more than it was before the schools were consolidated. The gains in the school are results. No teacher has more than two grades. The boisterous spirit characteristic of the district school, has given way to order and discipline, and lack of respect for property is being replaced by aesthetic taste and respect for public property.

The school at Grant, Kentucky, is just the same story repeated. The primary teacher is a classmate of mine, and the intermediate teacher was a member of my first class of common school graduates. The patrons are lifelong friends who can have no possible motive for concealing matters and one and all are enthusiastic over the benefits derived from consolidation.

It is therefore a fair conclusion that a large graded school may be built up by combining several district schools, that classification and graduation in such school will be better than in the small schools, for there will be fewer classes for each teacher, longer recitation periods, better direction of the study period, more for careful lesson assignments, more thorough lessons, better teaching force, better supervision and better discipline.

No teacher can present all subjects equally well. Teachers can specialize for particular grades or subjects. The work of schools will be reduced and the Superintendent can make more frequent visits and keep in closer touch with the special needs of each school.

All grades do not require the same discipline; the play element may enter the work of the primary grades without attracting the attention of the other grades and the discipline necessary to the higher grades may be enforced without inflicting it upon the primary grades.

Better equipment can be secured and more used of it. In many instances one piece of apparatus will serve the entire school; whereas the district plan would require a separate piece for each school; consequently with a given amount of money more can be secured to devote his time to it. The social training will be improved, for the acquaintance will be increased and the several will become one. The influence of training teachers will be felt and there will be enough to inspire an interest in lecture courses, school theatricals, debating societies and athletic clubs.

It is claimed by those opposed to consolidation that the farmer's child needs only the instruction given in the district school; that successful men and women have received all their education in the district school; that convenience of the school is of first importance; that the child is unable to assist in home duties by being required to leave home earlier and return later; that the child's health will be impaired by long rides in poorly ventilated wagons and by exposure to contagious diseases; that consolidation is too expensive; that proper drivers cannot be secured; that farm values will be depreciated by the removal of the district school, and that the presence of the children at a near school is a source of comfort in case of sickness.

It is answered, that a farmer's child is entitled to the best training to be had; that successful men and women who have had no training outside of the district school, have won recognition in spite of their limited training, and because of it; that the wagon can be heated and ventilated to be as comfortable as the schoolroom; that proper drivers may be secured by the same careful judgment that is used to select teachers; that danger of disease is not increased, as has been shown by experience; that consolidation does not depreciate farm values but rather increases them; that in case of sudden sickness the child will be cared for as well as at the district school; that the children may be able to perform as many home duties, but in the matter of education, the duty of the parent to the child takes precedence over the duty of the child to the parent in the performance of household duties.

As to the problem of transportation, Judge O'Leary has solved it. He says: "It is much better to transport children to the public schools with the public tax-money than to transport criminals to jails and penitentiaries. If you will transport children to school when they are young, you will not need to send so many to the other places when they are older."

Death of Good Woman.

Mrs. Mary E. Stout, age 75 years, died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. William Gilliland, near Fisherville, May 28. She was survived by three children, J. R. Stout, Mrs. Janie Gilliland, Mrs. Nannie Kinde, of Louisville. The funeral was held Saturday morning at 11 o'clock at Jeffersonton Baptist church, after which the burial was in Chenoweth cemetery.

Automobile Frightens Horse.

While Mr. F. M. Burdette, of Jeffersonton, was on his way Saturday afternoon to a trip to Fisherville in his automobile, a horse driven by Mr. Leslie Jewell, of Elk Creek, became frightened at the machine near Mr. H. E. J. Seitz's store, on the Taylorsville pike, and backed the back of a four foot embankment, overturning the vehicle and throwing Mr. Jewell to the ground. Luckily, Mr. Jewell escaped without injury, and the horse was only slightly damaged, a shaft being broken and bowl sprung.

BASEBALL

At Hikes' Point Sunday Between Jeffersonton and S. M. V. Results in Score of 5 to 5 in Favor of Local Team.

A very exciting, and not at all featureless, game of baseball was played by the Jeffersonton team Sunday afternoon at Hikes' Point. The features of the game were the catching of Thomas and our old friend Romelle's pounding the ball, making three safe hits and scoring three of the eight runs; also, the pitching of Weill, who had the opponents at his mercy at all times, except in the sixth inning, where he let them get in four runs. This was the first time last year, but he did not overlook the good work done by the little fellow on second, whose name is McGruder, as he was here, there everywhere, and it was impossible to get one where he couldn't stop it rapid flight.

We are giving praise to the above players because they deserve it, but do not forget that the other boys also played "some ball."

The Jeffersonton team wish to express their thanks and appreciation to the ones who so willingly contributed to help them get a start. We also appreciate the support given them by the "rooters."

All of the good old Democrats and the non-prejudiced Republicans could not fail to remember our friend, Hon. Swagar Sherley, who gave the team $500 and sent along with it his best wishes for their success.

The final score was 5 to 5 in favor of Jeffersonton. The line up was as follows:

Jeffersonton: 1st, 3rd, 5th, 7th, 9th; 2nd, 4th, 6th, 8th, 10th; 11th, 12th, 13th, 14th, 15th; 16th, 17th, 18th, 19th, 20th; 21st, 22nd, 23rd, 24th, 25th; 26th, 27th, 28th, 29th, 30th; 31st, 32nd, 33rd, 34th, 35th; 36th, 37th, 38th, 39th, 40th; 41st, 42nd, 43rd, 44th, 45th; 46th, 47th, 48th, 49th, 50th; 51st, 52nd, 53rd, 54th, 55th; 56th, 57th, 58th, 59th, 60th; 61st, 62nd, 63rd, 64th, 65th; 66th, 67th, 68th, 69th, 70th; 71st, 72nd, 73rd, 74th, 75th; 76th, 77th, 78th, 79th, 80th; 81st, 82nd, 83rd, 84th, 85th; 86th, 87th, 88th, 89th, 90th; 91st, 92nd, 93rd, 94th, 95th; 96th, 97th, 98th, 99th, 100th.

Card of Thanks.

We, the family of late Mrs. Mary E. Stout, take this means to thank many friends in our bereavement and to express our appreciation of the many kindnesses shown her and us during her illness. THE FAMILY.

Rev. Reynolds Honeored.

The members of the Jeffersonton Colored Baptist church on May 23 to 30 honored the pastor, Rev. Richard Reynolds by celebrating his 22nd pastoral anniversary. A very interesting program was arranged for each day, and at the close a large reception was held, when all kinds of refreshments were served. The proceeds, amounting to over $100, was given to the pastor. About 225 guests were present, and in addition to the proceeds from the supper, Rev. Reynolds received many nice presents, some of them being given by the white people of the town. Rev. Reynolds is a leading and minister and stands at the front in the uplift of his people.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address F. J. Closing Exercises of K. M. L.—Mrs. John

Gaines Delightful Hostess—A Good

Letter From A. B. C.

St. Matthews, May 30.—The protracted services conducted by the Rev. J. B. Briney at Beargrass church, closed last Saturday night with four additions by baptism and three by letter. But only tenacity can estimate the good done in other ways. Those who have battled many years have been encouraged; the weak and faint-hearted have been inspired to go forward with new real for the cause of Christ.

The little "Busy Bee" club of Bear-grass, with the teacher, Miss Alice Herr, will give a lawn fete Thursday afternoon from five to ten at Mr. Henry Halthamer's—cream, cake and strawberries will be served at the usual price. This little hostess of juveniles, all under twelve years of age, are wonderful workers; and have undertaken to build them a room for their class at the church by their own efforts. Let everyone help them to accomplish this desire, and at the same time you will spend an enjoyable evening, to say nothing of how good the ice cream, cake, etc., will taste.

This week many of the county schools, a relief to both teachers and scholars. Among them, Miss Shallie Kring's school at Goose Creek

Thursday afternoon. She will give the following touches to this season, with a treat of good things for the children. There has been much sickness since Christmas, competing for prizes has been very unsatisfactory, but those who were able to attend school have done excellent work.

We always feel lonesome when the little K. closes. This year we took from us the merry boys from many states and to whom we had been so tenderly attached. How proud we are that our own boy, Mr. Paul Arterman, was awarded the gold medal in the declamatory contest.

Of course, we knew he was the smartest, but several days with the edge it was balm to our hearts indeed. An alumni dinner, which exercises, with Dr. Bayly's address, which was very pathetic. To see those who were educated at old K. M. L.

so few the war was, indeed, interesting, proving also that this school has not equal.

We are sorry to note the illness of our friend and neighbor,

Mr. Thomas Hite, who was taken on to the Deaconess hospital last Tuesday. Hope he will soon recover.

Mrs. John Gaines, who is a delightful hostess, gave her friends a lovely "spread" last week. There was such a com-ination of enjoyment, it hardly know which was uppermost—

THE NAVY OR PRISON.

Many of the readers of The Jeffersonian, no doubt, have read Lewis Wallace's grand work, "Ben Hur."

It gives us about the best idea of the Roman civilization at the time of Christ that has ever been written in English, according to my small knowledge (if I have any). In Ben Hur he shows how the powers that controlled then filled their navy, for arresting men for being poor, or for any other flimsy excuse, and sentencing them to the galleys for life, when they were short of motive power to man their ships of war or commerce. Well, Judge,—"Of Cincinati, must have evidently read the book, Ben Hur, and loves the ancient mode of manning ships, for according to dispatches, he sentenced three poor fellows to the galleys for some time ago, giving them their choice of navy or prison. (For my part I would gladly take prison.) Don't you see that, humanely, in some ways, is about the same as in the bloody, brutal days of barbarism, i.e., politically? The grand old United States is slowly, but surely, traveling the same way as Rome, and you know her sad decline and fall.

We poor laboring men still vote to have this continued. Now, I am not writing against my country, but I trust for it. I love my country and try to cast my vote so as to put her on the road that leads to the opposite of what Rome walked, or rather ran.

What we need is direct legislation on all matters that will be "the people's rule." So, citizens, let me ask you, if you love your country, wake up! Tyranny is creeping castiously upon us like the tiger upon its prey. Investigate all matters toward good citizenship, or else it will be too late. Our children will find conditions worse than we now find them, if we do not work while the sun shines; for the night will come when we work no more. Labor, unite, and the world is ours. We have nothing but our chains to lose —we have a world to gain.

I am yours for the commonwealth,
A WORTHINGTONIAN.

WORTHINGTON NEWS.

Our school is now closed for this term and our teacher, Miss Grunwald, returns home at Anchorage. She will leave shortly for Bowling Green to take a higher course in teaching. She has been a good and instructive teacher and also her brilliant conversation and charming manner in our social gatherings made her a favorite with all. Her departure is regretted very much and we look forward with joy for her return in September and begin the duties of training up the children in the way they should go.

Haley's Comet is also going away—Mr. John Quinn has been on the sick list for some time and will not be able to return here for some time. He was a photographer, i.e., takes pictures, but has changed his profession to that of trading.

and fair supper at their home last Friday in honor of Miss Vestina Grunwald. Many beautiful stars and comets were out and everybody had a grand time and wish for another rising star or comet to appear. Among the guests were Misses Kate Quinn, Vestina Grunwald, Mabel Leola and Ruth Maddox, Louise Newton, Anna and Gertrude Miller,
